The Cheltenham and District Allotment Holders' Association

The Cheltenham and District Allotment Holders' Association (C&DAHA) was formed in 1976 when a group of allotment gardeners saw the need to promote the interests of allotment gardeners.

C&DAHA consult with the Borough Council on matters of concern such as Terms of Tenancies, rents and site maintenance. Members also benefit from a number of discounts from local suppliers including a seed scheme, which gives members the opportunity to purchase seeds and other items at a favourable rate.

We aim to have representatives from each allotment site on our committee, which meets four times a year to discuss allotment business and to provide a link between allotment tenants and the local council.

We hold three meetings a year, including talks on subjects of horticultural interest. Allotment matters may be raised at any meeting, particularly at the Annual General Meeting.

We are affiliated to the National Allotment Society and the Gloucestershire Federation of Gardening Societies which has over 150 member societies.

What Do We Do?

The Cheltenham and District Allotment Holders' Association works in the interests of its members by:
